DIRECTORS NOTE

I am honored to have worked on Legally Blonde Jr. with every one of these individuals. This story tells the importance of loving yourself despite what society sees, and I think that is a message we need to be reminded of often. Elle reminds us that despite how others pick and choose what to take from us, we know our skill sets and strengths better than anyone. I hope this musical shows audiences in the same way it has shown us that we deserve to find our own happy ending, unapologetically. Even if our path isn't what others would have guessed or hoped for us, or where we thought we would end up, it is our story, and we should live it with everything in us. I have learned so much about perception and perseverance through this process, and have watched the whole cast and crew grow as humans, artists, and as kids. I could not be more proud to be their director and choreographer. I had a mentor in college say that "you inherently are profound". Elle, Emmett, and their friends personify this so fully. The people on stage take the journey to learn they are profound, and I truly hope you as an audience can come out of this show feeling the same. Another important message in this show is that you do not need to succeed alone. You can be confident in yourself while building others up; helping them discover their sense of self. Along with that, I want to thank everyone who has made this process as wonderful as it was. My team, this cast, everyone at Shawnee who has made Legally Blonde Jr.

possible, and of course my family. Furthermore, thank you to everyone who has believed in us throughout our lives. I can promise, if you truly saw something in one of these artists, you will never be forgotten as these kids grow into their own selves. Thank you for your inspirations and the pieces of strength you gave us to see we are enough. And lastly, as Elle put it, thank you "the ones who thought I'd fall, who taught me how to fail, you helped me to prevail". Thank you for showing your support at Legally Blonde Jr., I am so proud of every person involved! With that, enjoy the show, and never question that you are profound.

~Sincerely,
Cordelia D'Orsi
